NORTHERN IRELAND ASSEMBLY ELECTION 2007

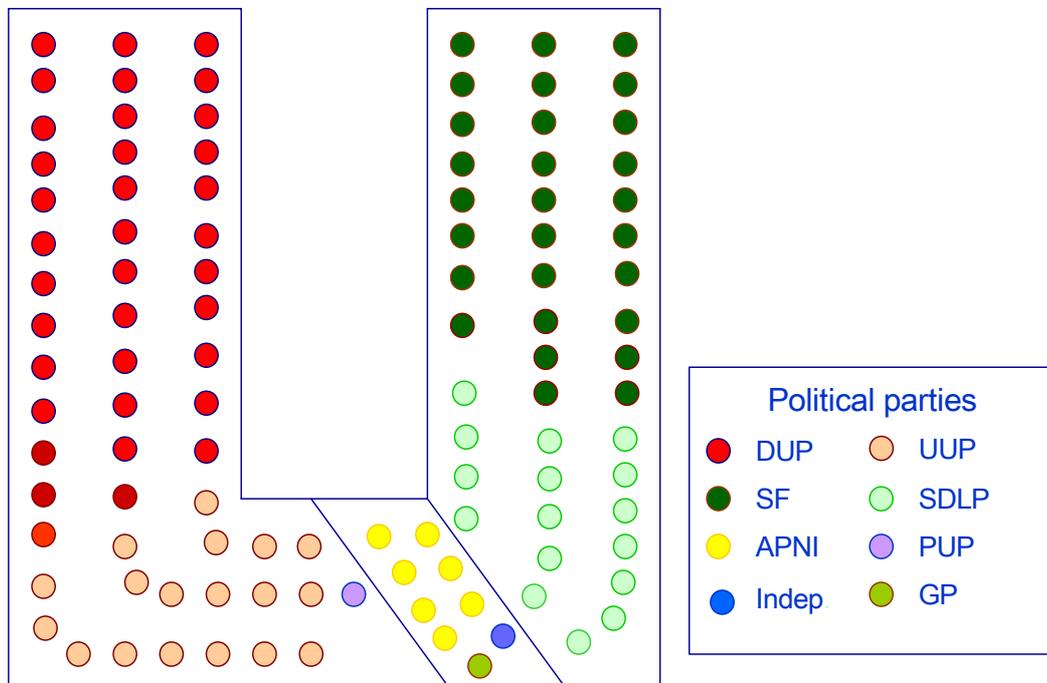

This paper provides an analysis of the Northern Ireland Assembly election held on 7 March 2007 and compares it with the 2003 election. It includes analysis of turnout, transferred votes and results by party and constituency. It also contains some useful links to other sources of information on the politics of Northern Ireland and the 2007 election results.

Library Research Papers are compiled for the benefit of Members of The Assembly and their personal staff. Authors are available to discuss the contents of these papers with Members and their staff but cannot advise members of the general public.

SUMMARY OF KEY POINTS

- The 2007 Northern Ireland Assembly election left the parties with the following seats:

Democratic Unionist Party	36
Sinn Fein	28
Ulster Unionist Party	18
Social Democratic and Labour Party	16
Alliance Party of Northern Ireland	7
Progressive Unionist Party	1
Green Party	1
Independent	1

- Compared with the 2003 election, the 2007 election resulted in swings in favour of the Democratic Unionist Party (+6 seats), Sinn Fein (+4 seats) and the Alliance Party (+1 seat), while the Green Party acquired its first seat in the Assembly. The Progressive Unionist Party retained the one seat that it had held previously, while the UK Unionist Party lost its only seat. The Ulster Unionist Party lost 9 seats and Social Democratic and Labour Party 2 seats.
- The Democratic Unionist Party had the highest share of all first preference votes (30.1% - up from 25.7% in 2003), followed by Sinn Fein (26.2% - up from 23.5% in 2003), SDLP (15.2% - down from 17.0% in 2003) and the Ulster Unionist Party (14.9% - down from 22.7% in 2003). The Alliance Party increased its share of the vote from 3.7% in 2003 to 5.2%.

- 79% of transfers¹ from Unionist voters went to other Unionist party candidates; 12% went to Nationalist party candidates.
- 64% of transfers from Nationalist voters went to other Nationalist party candidates; 13% went to Unionist party candidates.
- Of the 108 MLAs elected in 2007, 29 were new² and 18 were women (the same number as elected in 2003).
- Turnout³ in the election was 62.3% (compared with 63.1% in 2003).
- A total of 257 candidates⁴ contested the election (compared with 256 in 2003).

¹ Excluding transfers to other candidates in the same party.

² i.e. did not have seats during the 2003-2007 term.

³ Valid votes expressed as a percentage of electorate.

⁴ This includes multiple counting for one candidate who stood in six constituencies. There were, in fact, only 252 individuals standing for election.

1. Introduction

The current Northern Ireland Assembly⁵ was established under the terms of the Good Friday Agreement⁶ and was first elected on 25 June 1998. Legislative powers and executive authority for the Northern Ireland Government Departments⁷ were devolved to the Assembly from 2 December 1999.

Since devolution, the Assembly has been suspended on four occasions⁸, with the latest of these suspensions occurring on 14 October 2002. Despite this, an election for the second session of the Assembly eventually went ahead on 26 November 2003.

The Assembly remained suspended, however, after the second election, although the Northern Ireland (St Andrews Agreement) Act 2006 provided for a Transitional Assembly to take part in preparations for the restoration of devolved government in accordance with the St Andrews Agreement.⁹

This Transitional Assembly helped to create the conditions for a third Assembly election, which took place on 7 March 2007. Restoration is scheduled to take place on 8 May 2007.

2. The Electoral System

The Single Transferable Vote (STV)¹⁰ system of proportional representation is used to elect Members of the Assembly. This system is also used in the Northern Ireland Local Government and European Parliament elections and in elections in the Republic of Ireland.

STV has a number of advantages over the simple 'first past the post' system used in the Westminster elections:

- It increases voter choice (voters can vote for more than one candidate and can choose between candidates as well as between parties);
- It ensures that more voters have an effect on the outcome (over 80% of all valid votes are used in the determination of the six seats in each constituency¹¹); and

⁶ Also referred to as the 'Belfast Agreement' (see <http://www.nio.gov.uk/agreement.pdf>).

⁷ See <http://www.northernireland.gov.uk> for list of Departments and their functions.

⁸ The first suspension took place on 11 February 2000, shortly after devolution, and lasted until 29 May 2000; two further one day suspensions took place on 11 August 2001 and 22 September 2001; the latest suspension began on 14 October 2002 (see <http://cain.ulst.ac.uk/issues/politics/government.htm>).

⁹ Information on the St. Andrews Agreement and more information on the background and politics of Northern Ireland can be found at the following websites:
<http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Image:Politicsofnorthernirelandlogo.svg>
<http://cain.ulst.ac.uk/issues/politics/politics.htm>

¹⁰ See R.A. Newland & F.S. Britton "How to Conduct an Election by the Single Transferable Vote", Electoral Reform Society, London: 1973 for a detailed description of STV.

¹¹ See note 8 - if all successful candidates make the quota then six quotas will be used i.e. 6/7 of all valid votes = 86%.

- It ensures an outcome that is more representative of the views of the electorate (overall share of seats will better reflect overall share of the vote i.e. voters will be proportionately represented).

The STV system works as follows:

- Voters in each constituency vote for as many candidates as they wish in order of preference.
- Each voting paper is checked to see if it has been correctly filled in and any spoilt papers¹² are removed from the count to give a total valid count.
- A quota is calculated for each constituency using the formula¹³:

- Voting papers are sorted according to first preferences. Any candidate attaining or exceeding the quota is deemed to be elected.
- Surplus votes from candidates who exceed the quota are transferred at a fractional value to the remaining candidates according to next available preference¹⁴.
- Candidates with the least number of votes are excluded and their votes are also transferred according to next available preference.
- This process continues until all available seats have been filled.

This procedure was used to elect six Members for each of the 18 constituencies in the 1998, 2003 and 2007 Assembly elections.

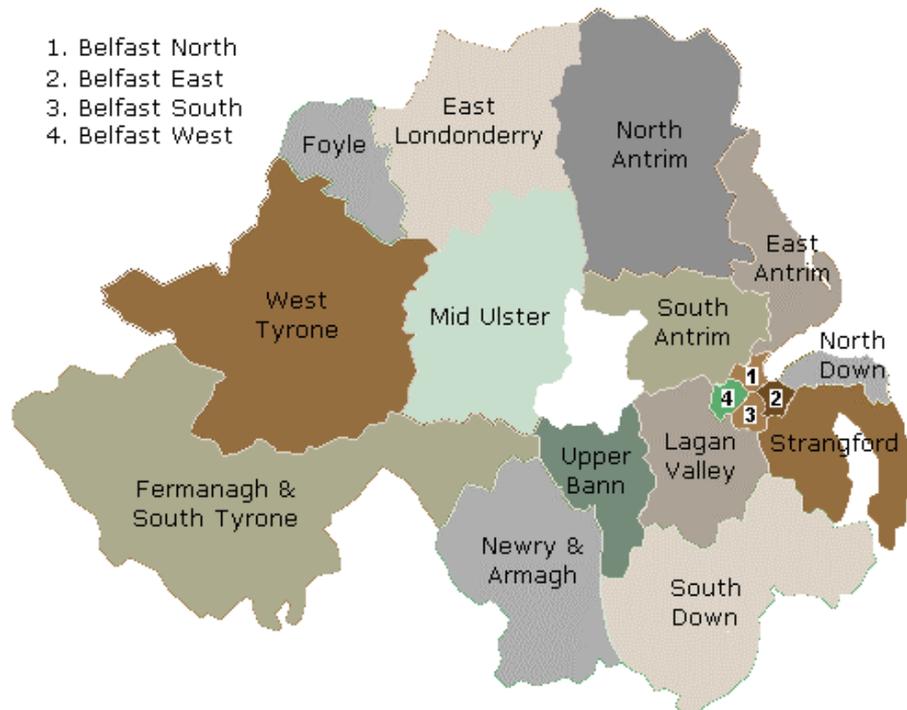

¹² Spoilt ballots include those where the first preference candidate cannot clearly be determined e.g. where a voter has placed a number of "X"s against the list of candidates instead of using the numbers 1, 2, 3, etc. If an "X" has been placed against only one candidate, this will be taken as the first preference and the vote will be counted. Also, if a voter has left out a number (e.g. voting 1,2,3,5,6) their votes up to the missing number will be accepted and the remaining numbers will be ignored (votes 1,2 and 3 only are valid in this example).

¹⁴ All the most preferred candidate's voters have an equal right to decide how that candidate's surplus vote is transferred or re-distributed to second preferences, so all the elected candidate's transferable votes are transferred with a fractional transfer value (obtained by taking the surplus and dividing it by the total number of papers that were transferable - the result is calculated to two decimal places and the remainder ignored).

3. The Constituencies

The 18 Westminster parliamentary constituencies¹⁵ are used for the Assembly elections (see map below). Six seats are allocated to each constituency, giving a total of 108 seats. The geographical boundaries for the 18 constituencies have remained unchanged since the first Assembly election in 1998.

¹⁵ Profiles of the 18 constituencies can be found on the Northern Ireland Statistics and Research Agency's Neighbourhood Statistics site at <http://www.ninis.nisra.gov.uk> (click on 'NINIS website' button, then 'Area Profile' button, then 'View Assembly Areas' button; any constituency can then be selected by clicking on the map location or by clicking on the list of constituencies; finally, click on the 'View Profile' button (bottom right) to view the profile).

4. The Candidates

A total of 257 candidates stood for the 2007 election¹⁶, compared with 256 in 2003 (Table 4.1 provides a breakdown by party and gender).¹⁷

There were 47 female candidates in this election (compared with 49 in 2003). The party with the greatest number of female candidates was the SDLP, with 14 (see Table 4.1 below).

Of the 108 outgoing MLAs, 91 stood for re-election.

5. Turnout

The total eligible electorate was 1,107,904 (compared with 1,097,526 in 2003).¹⁸ The total valid vote was 690,313, or 62.3% of the electorate (compared with a turnout¹⁹ of 63.1% in 2003).

Turnout for the 2007 election was highest in Mid Ulster (72.3%) and lowest in East Antrim (53.0%) – see Table 5.1.

¹⁸ Figures obtained from the Electoral Office for Northern Ireland - <http://www.eoni.org.uk>.

¹⁹ Turnout is calculated according to the Electoral Commission definition i.e. by taking the number of valid votes as a percentage of the electorate.

A comparison with turnout for previous Assembly elections shows a slight decline in most areas since the 2003 election and a significant decline in all areas since 1998 (Table 5.2).

6. Results by Constituency

The 2007 election resulted in further significant changes to the Northern Ireland political map (see Figure 6.1 above), with the Democratic Unionist Party taking the largest share of the votes in 10 of the 18 constituencies. An analysis of the results for each constituency, including the transfer of votes and the major changes since 2003, is presented in this section of the report (a summary of party changes is provided in Section 7 of the report and breakdowns of the 1998, 2003 and 2007 results by party and constituency are presented in Annexes A - F).²⁰

Table 6.1 below shows the distribution of seats by constituency (with 2003 comparisons). The party shares of first preference votes and an analysis of transferred votes are presented separately for each constituency in the charts that follow.²¹ Swings in favour of the DUP, Sinn Fein and the Alliance Party (in terms of share of first preference votes) are evident throughout most of the 18 constituencies.

²⁰ See the Electoral Office for Northern Ireland website for the full results for each constituency – www.eoni.org.uk. Analysis of the 2007 Northern Ireland Assembly election is also available at the following sites:

The 2007 Northern Ireland Assembly election resulted in further substantial swings in favour of the Democratic Unionist Party and Sinn Fein (see Tables 7.1 and 7.2 and Figure 7.1).

The Democratic Unionist Party increased their share of first preference votes from 25.7% in 2003 to 30.1% and gained six seats (gains in Belfast East, East Londonderry, Fermanagh & South Tyrone, Lagan Valley (2), Strangford and West Tyrone, with one loss in Belfast West). DUP candidates received a total of 22,799 transferred votes²² from other voters (see Annex G and Figure 7.2 above). Most of these (65%) came from other Unionist voters, with only 2% coming from Nationalist voters and 33% from other voters.

Sinn Fein increased their share of first preference votes from 23.5% in 2003 to 26.2% and gained four seats (Belfast West, Lagan Valley, South Antrim and West Tyrone). Of the five largest parties, Sinn Fein candidates received the fewest transferred votes. Excluding transfers from other candidates in their own party, they received only 7,419 in total – 25% of which came from SDLP voters; 10% from Green Party voters; 2% from Unionist voters; and 63% from other voters.

The Ulster Unionist Party lost nine seats and its share of first preference votes fell from 22.7% in 2003 to 14.9%. These losses were incurred in Belfast East, Belfast South, East Londonderry, Fermanagh & South Tyrone, Lagan Valley (2), South Antrim, Strangford and West Tyrone. UUP candidates received a total of 25,886 transferred votes from other voters. The largest proportion of these (42%) came from other Unionist voters; 12% from Alliance voters; 7% from Nationalist party voters; 5% from Green Party voters; and 34% from other voters.

The SDLP lost two seats (Lagan Valley and West Tyrone) and its share of first preference votes fell from 17.0% in 2003 to 15.2%. SDLP candidates received a total of 28,748 transferred votes from other voters. The largest proportion of these (39%) came from Sinn Fein voters; 13% from Unionist voters; 8% from Alliance voters; 7% from Green Party voters; and 33% from other voters.

The Alliance Party increased their share of first preference votes from 3.7% in 2003 to 5.2% and gained a seat in South Belfast. Alliance candidates received a total of 7,640 transferred votes – 32% of which came from Nationalist voters; 17% from Green Party voters; 13% from Unionist voters; and 38% from other voters.

The United Kingdom Unionist Party lost its only seat (in North Down) despite its overall share of first preference votes virtually doubling from 0.8% in 2003 to 1.5% (although this increase was primarily due to its representation in 13 constituencies this time around compared with only 6 in 2003).

The Progressive Unionist Party retained its seat in Belfast East, although its share of first preference votes was halved from 1.2% in 2003 to 0.6% (a decrease which was due to reduced representation from 11 candidates in 2003 to only 3 in 2007). It is interesting to note that Dawn Purvis (the only PUP candidate who received any significant transfers – 1,163 in total) received more transfers from Nationalist voters (407) than she did from Unionist voters (286).

The Green Party increased its share of first preference votes from 0.4% in 2003 to 1.7% and gained its first seat in the Assembly (in North Down). The Green Party received a total of 4,236 transferred votes from other voters – 20% from Nationalist voters; 17% from Unionist voters; 13% from alliance voters; and 50% from other voters.

²² Excluding transfers to other candidates within the same party.

There was only one seat won by an independent. Dr. Kieran Deeny retained his seat in West Tyrone.

Analysis of transferred votes²³ revealed that 79% of transfers from Unionist voters²⁴ went to other Unionist party candidates and 12% went to Nationalist party candidates, whilst 64% of transfers from Nationalist voters²⁵ went to other Nationalist party candidates and 13% went to Unionist party candidates. The SDLP received the most transferred votes from other parties. Out of the four major parties, Sinn Féin received the lowest number of transfers (see Annex G and Table 7.2 above).

Of the 108 MLAs elected, 29 are new²⁶ and 18 are women (the same number of women as in 2003).
